

The name says it all...

Just Jazz

October 2015

Hi Friends — val·ue /'valyoo/ noun: the regard that something is held to deserve; the importance, worth, or usefulness of something val·u·a·ble /'valy(ə)ebəl/ adjective: of great worth

According to those definitions Yoenis Céspedes of the New York Mets not only has value, but is the Most Valuable Player in the league. Before the Mets traded for him on July 31 they were barely treading water, just three games over .500. Then he joined the club and they've powered their way through the next two months, topping their division. No player has made a bigger difference in his team's performance, a bigger contribution to winning, than Céspedes.

OK, so he'll play only two months for the Mets. So what? Add in his stats from the previous four months with the Detroit Tigers and Céspedes matches up against anyone in the game. He, friends, is the very definition of a "five-tool player," in a class with the Pirates' Andrew McCutchen and the Angels' Mike Trout. And his only differences between Céspedes and the presumptive National League MVP, the Nationals' Bryce Harper, are that his team didn't choke, and none of teammates tried to choke him.

Sure, he played the first two-thirds of the season in the "other league," but let's get real. Since the advent of that scourge known as "interleague play" there is in baseball, de facto, just one league with two conferences, like in football. And Céspedes is the MVP of it all.

Oh, there is one more definition of "valuable": worth a lot of money. And that Céspedes clearly is. So, Mets management, come the offseason gas up the armored car, fill it with green, and show him the money because if you don't, another team will.

Stay cool, keep list'nin', and Let's Go, Mets!

QUOTES OF THE MONTH

Vernon Duke wrote a song called "Autumn in New York" but had obviously not spent the preceding summer there.

— Mort Sahl

This is a musician's joy. It is extraordinary — it has no end of imagination and it is completely unpredictable. The whole performance has a fresh, invigorating quality. ... One of the most imaginative things I have heard.

— Vernon Duke on Dizzy Gillespie's 1945 recording of his song, "I Can't Get Started"

NEW & RECOMMENDED CDS

Eric Alexander: The Real Thing (High Note): Tenor saxophone Eric Alexander just can't stop swinging'. Joined by colleagues pianist Harold Mabern, bassist John Webber, and drummer Joe Farnsworth — plus on three tracks the eminent guitarist, Pat Martino — Alexander delivers his usual solid, straight-ahead, no-nonsense program that is, as its title declares, "the real thing."

Daniel Čaćija: Lifeline (Mons): In a world of pretenders and fakes, real jazz singers with true musicianship like Daniel Čaćija are a genuine rarity. Čaćija's striking debut CD is a well-paced, impeccably rendered blend of standards, pop tunes, vocalese à la Eddie Jefferson, and a pair of his own originals, heartfelt and moving, based on traditional Macedonian folk songs.

Peggy Stern: Z Octet (Estrella Productions): Pianist-composer Peggy Stern's latest release is a chamber jazz treat. Performed by a uniquely configured octet — piano, clarinet, flute, trombone, cello, bass, drums, and voice — Stern's writing is original and quirky, clever and engaging, and enhanced by strong solos, notably by her piano and the clarinet of Su Terry.

And here's something extra special...

Erroll Garner: The Complete Concert by the Sea (Columbia/Legacy): One of the greatest jazz recordings of all-time just got even greater. Erroll Garner's classic 1955 concert album has been reissued in a three-CD set, intelligently annotated and reassembled with eleven never-before-heard tunes. (Also included in the package is the edited concert as it first appeared on LP, plus a fourteen-minute interview with the players.) As if any evidence were needed, here's absolute proof that Garner is one of the most important and distinctive pianists ever in jazz.
