QUOTE OF THE MONTH

To conceive music that keeps the consciousness of people at the status quo, music that devalues all the principles of good living, music that lowers and demoralizes the consciousness of people shows ignorance and lack of growth on the part of the conceiver, or possibly a deliberate attempt by the conceiver to hamper the growth of people's minds so that they continue to be manipulated and used.

– Horace Silver
pianist & composer

NEW & RECOMMENDED CDS

Samuel Blaser: Boundless (Hat Hut Records) & Consort in Motion (Kind of Blue Records): Swiss trombonist Samuel Blaser, one of the most innovative voices on his instrument, has released not one, but two remarkable quartet CDs. The four-movement "Boundless Suite" draws upon extended instrumental techniques and cohesive collective improvisation to produce music that is challenging and truly boundless. Consort in Motion infuses compositions by 17th century Italian composers (Monteverdi, Frescobaldi, Marini) with cutting-edge jazz — sparked by the inspired drums of Paul Motian — to create a program of extraordinary "new" works.

Mike DiRubbo & Larry Willis: Four Hands, One Heart (Ksanti Records): "We've traveled different paths," says alto saxophonist Mike DiRubbo about himself and pianist Larry Willis, "but our roots and branches are from the same tree." Willis and DiRubbo reap the delicious fruit of that tree on this brilliant duo recording, as they insightfully and intuitively explore a well chosen program of jazz standards, plus an original composition by each of them.

Claudio Roditi: Bons Amigos (Resonance Records): It's clear from this sparking quintet date that trumpeter Claudio Roditi's bons amigos are both his gifted musical colleagues — notably guitarist Romero Lubambo — and the legendary Brazilian composers like Egberto Gismonti, Johnny Alf, and Toninho Horta, whose music he interprets. Roditi also lends his voice to one of Jobim's lesser known songs ("Ligia") and plays piccolo trumpet on his own "Piccolo Samba."
