Lucy Stone Hall, Room A 143

We have a natural human tendency to take the safe route – to do the thing we know will work – rather than taking a chance. But that’s the antithesis of jazz, which is all about being in the present. Jazz is about being in the moment, at every moment. It’s about trusting yourself to respond on the fly. If you can allow yourself to do that, you never stop exploring, you never stop learning, in music or in life.

– pianist-composer Herbie Hancock

The bottom line of any country is, what did we contribute to the world? We contributed Louis Armstrong.

– singer Tony Bennett

Jazz is America's greatest cultural gift to the world, a gift originally fashioned by the first and second generations of free black Americans from diverse musical sources. Today jazz, having blossomed from its humble folk roots, is performed, listened to, and loved by people in every nation on the planet, a true "world music."

This course explores the evolution of jazz in America from the early 1900s to the present, from its roots in the black folk music of the 1800s to current jazz styles and genres. It also examines the influence that jazz and jazz musicians have had on popular music and vice versa. And a central emphasis of this course is learning how to listen to and appreciate recorded and live jazz performances.

Class presentations will feature recorded audio examples as a way to illustrate and enhance the course material and stimulate discussions. From time to time I also will email you video clips of some of the artists we’ve covered in class. While the material is targeted to non-music majors – absolutely no jazz or general musical background is required – the course also will be of interest to experienced musicians and jazz fans.

Core Curriculum Goals:

The course will serve to satisfy SAS requirements for the following Core Curriculum Goals:

AH:p.: Analyze arts in themselves and in relation to specific histories, values, languages, cultures, and technologies. Student achievement of this Core Goal will be measured in the various class assignments and projects (see details below).

Required Texts

- John F. Szwed, Jazz 101, New York: Hachette Books, 2000. ISBN 9 780786 884964
- Rex Stewart, Jazz Masters of the 30s, New York: DaCapo Press, 1982. ISBN 9 780306 801594

These books are available at the Barnes and Noble Bookstore (100 Somerset St.) or via Amazon. Other required readings will be posted on www.jazzbob.com.

The lesson plan/schedule of assignments, below, outlines the assigned readings that should be completed prior to each class. Generally, the readings are meant to reinforce material raised during class meetings, and will be incorporated in the exams.

Website

Assignments, additional readings, and examples of musical concepts and jazz genres introduced in class will be posted on my website, www.jazzbob.com, and can be accessed via the home page by clicking the link, “For Rutgers Students.”

Learning Outcomes

Students who regularly attend class, keep up with the assigned readings, and successfully complete all of the written assignments in a timely manner can expect to come away from the course with the following skills:

- Ability to trace the historical/sociological contexts of jazz’s origin and evolution
- Ability to identify distinctive African-American aesthetic elements inherent in the jazz tradition, as well in American popular music generally
- Ability to discuss the development and characteristics of specific jazz forms, styles, and genres
- Ability to explain how jazz has both influenced and been influenced by other genres of music
- Ability to listen to live and recorded jazz performances – and musical performances, in general – with a greater depth of appreciation, understanding, and enjoyment.

In addition, it is expected that students will gain insight into the lives, careers, and personalities of the creative people who have made, and continue to make, this vital music.

Grading / Assessment

Your final course grade is based on the following three, equally weighted elements:

1. midterm exam
2. final exam
3. three radio listening reports

Exams

Exams will consist of a written portion (short essay) and a listening portion. The written component will require knowledge of historical facts, basic musical concepts, key individuals and their importance, and the social-historical forces that have influenced the evolution of jazz. The listening component may include identifying the style or form, as well as other key elements, of a particular recording.

Weekly Radio Listening Reports

Beginning with the second week of the course, students are required to listen to one hour of jazz radio programming each week and produce a report on their listening. (You may, of course, listen to more than that.) These Weekly Jazz Radio Listening Reports will be submitted via email three times this semester for evaluation. A full discussion of the assignment appears in a separate document.

Grading Rubric for Radio Listening Reports
Formatting and Organization: The assignment was properly formatted, and clearly and logically organized (10%)
Presentation of Ideas: The assignment is carefully executed with attention, clarity, insight, and creativity. (75%)
Mechanics and Tone: The assignment demonstrates coherent sentence structure, correct spelling and punctuation, and a writing style that is scholarly, yet engaging. (15%)
Reports that are submitted late will be lowered one full grade.

Grading Scale for Listening Reports

- A: Excellent, meeting the requirements with insight and creativity
- B+: Very good, meeting the requirements effectively
- B: Good, meeting most requirements adequately
- C+: Above average, satisfactory but lacking some key requirements
- C: Average, adequate but lacking many key requirements
- D: Poor, lacking most requirements
- F: Failure, lacking all requirements

Attendance

Since learning how to listen to jazz is a central focus of this course, we will spend a considerable amount of class time doing that, as we break down and analyze the elements that make up this music. For this reason, regular and consistent attendance is essential for the successful completion of the course. Students with an inordinate number of unexcused absences run the risk of receiving a lower semester grade by one rank: i.e., an “A” lowered to a “B+,” etc.

Students are encouraged to raise questions and offer their reactions and opinions about the topics and the music presented in class.

Rutgers University Disability Policy: A student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus’s disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible.

PLEASE NOTE: In order to protect the health of all members of the Rutgers community, masks must be worn during class meetings, even in settings where 6-foot social distancing is possible. Any student not wearing a mask will be asked to do so or leave. Masks should conform to CDC guidelines and should completely cover the nose and mouth.
